CHINESE REDS START NEW CAMPAIGN

FASCISM'S "Lion of Africa," former Italian Marshal Rodolfo Graziani (above), 67, is guilty in Rome of treason charges and sentenced to 19 years by a military tribunal. Amnesties and credit for time spent in custody cut the veteran Africa campaigner's sentence to one year and two months.

GI Home-Finance Deal Liberalized

VA Changes Rules To Allow $7,500 Guarantee On House

Pickaway County's veterans of World War II, along with 13 million other ex-GIs, are about to be offered a new "good deal" under the GI Bill of Rights in the form of liberalized home-financing terms.

The changes in the veterans home-buying legislation were ordered recently by Congress and the government is now preparing rules and regulations, expected to go into operation in the next few days.

Then, if you are one of the 13 million vets who haven't made use of home-buying privileges, you are in for what officials describe as a pretty good purchasing plan.

Under it, the Veterans Administration will step up from $4,000 to $7,500 the maximum amount it can guarantee on the cost of a house. In no case can the guarantee be more than 60 percent of the cost, an increase of 10 percent.

This type of loan will carry with it an interest rate of four percent and the repayment period has been stretched from 25 to 30 years.

IN SHORT, a veteran will be able to buy a new house under the GI Bill costing up to $12,500 with terms based on a low interest rate and a long time to pay. There is some discussion that the interest rate may be too low to attract lenders, but the VA is prepared to use $150 million on outright loans to get the program underway.

In addition, the agency figures there will be enough four percent money available to handle the demand to a reasonable extent.

Still remaining is the task of selling a banker on the idea of floating the necessary loan.

In Circleville, first banker reaction was that this new "good deal" probably will be welcomed by financiers as well as would-be home-owning ex-GIs.

One local banker, although he said he was not fully informed on policies of other local banks, said he believed more VA loans would be made here than in the past.

Banker reaction, however, he said will not be "all-out." He explained that federal regulations tend to frown on a bank loaning much more than 25 percent of its total holdings.

A bank must have the available money before it can make a loan. If too much of its cash is tied up in other loans, a prospective GI loan will have to wait in line. But the GI has waited in line before.

Asked how much cash a GI should have when he walks into a bank to seek a VA loan, the bank spokesman said he believed that 10 percent of the total "will go a long way in selling the proposition to the banker."

HE SAID that "we feel that if part of the money invested in a new home comes out of the man's pocket, he will take more interest in the mortgage."

Still a key to whether a man can get a loan is a man himself.

The banker indicated that "just because he has a GI is no final proof that he has the ability to pay off his debt." He added:

"Two men, who sweated it out together in the same foxhole and turned in the same top-notch performance for their country, may not have the same ability when it comes to earning a living."

"Home loans are made on a man's individual character."

The bank spokesman said that if the VA is ready to make $150 million available so it can buy GI mortgages from "over-loaned" banks until the bank unloads some of its other shorter term loans and then allow the bank to buy back the GI paper, he believes that GI loans in Circleville will be floated in greater proportion than at present.

Meanwhile, in Washington, it was reported that industry groups are still peeved about (Continued on Page Two)

Parley Called On Aid Bill

WASHINGTON, May 6 — The Senate-passed $3,122,450,000 omnibus foreign aid bill headed today for a conference of the two houses of Congress and a final skirmish over the size of President Truman's Point Four Program.

The Senate approved the Cold War measure late yesterday by the top-heavy vote of 60 to eight.

The only significant change the Senate made in the administration's bill was a $250 million cut in the $3.1 billion which the President asked for European recovery. The House made the same cut in the same program weeks ago.

The above view is taken at the first turn looking back toward the finish line and grandstand during last year's Kentucky Derby. This year's, just as gay and thrill-packed as any before, will be the first run off without the

As usual, there will be some Pickaway Countians present for the 1950 Kentucky Derby, but whether they will see the Derby is another question. . . . the old saying is that thousands go to the Derby but only a couple dozen actually "see" it.

BUT OLD TUNNEL HAS BEEN ABANDONED

1899 Commissioners Here Wanted To Avoid Lynchings

No prisoner in Pickaway County jail should ever be subjected to terror of lynch law.

Such was the thought of the county commissioners during the latter part of the 19th century. The county chiefs in 1895 were interested in remodeling the courthouse and building a jail and jailer's residence.

The county jail at that time was in the basement of the courthouse. It had been repeatedly condemned by the grand jury.

But the thought of crossing open ground with the prisoner while bringing him from the jail to common pleas courtroom to stand trial gave the commissioners something akin to the horrors.

"A tunnel," said the county heads, "is what we need. Something to keep the mob from hanging a prisoner prematurely."

In 1899 the new jail was constructed and two wings added to the courthouse. The commissioners saw to it that a tunnel connecting the two buildings was made part of the project.

TO PASS through the tunnel from jail to courthouse required the opening of four doors, three of them iron.

According to Sheriff Charles Radcliff, the tunnel was illuminated by gas lights.

"But," he explained, "the gas lines were taken out about eight years ago. They were removed after the odor of gas was noted in the tunnel. We investigated and found the pipes had rusted through."

A fluorescent light illuminates the courthouse end of the tunnel now. Its glow, however, does not penetrate more than a few feet along the cobweb festooned tunnel.

"The tunnel hasn't been used for years," said the sheriff. "At least not for conducting prisoners. We use a small part of it at the other end for a photo laboratory."

At the courthouse end the tunnel opens out into three brick-ceilinged rooms. The rooms are now used as store-rooms.

"The peculiar part about those ceilings," said Sheriff Radcliff, "is that there appears to be no support for it. In one room there are no beams, no posts. The bricks hang overhead with the mortar between them their only support."

The other end of the tunnel is completely different. At that end is a complete photography laboratory. Radcliff said the lab was built about three years ago.

"Fellows from the jail did most of the work," he said. "They dug up the old cement floor at the tunnel entrance, pushed the debris in wheelbarrows to the foot of the iron stairs leading to the first floor of the jail. They carried it up in buckets to dump it outside."

THE PHOTO lab consists of three well-lighted rooms. The first room is furnished with a desk and comfortable chairs. A tiny steam heater furnishes heat in winter months. Walls are painted green, the cement floor battleship gray.

The ceiling is covered with a thick layer of insulation. Radcliff explained that the material makes the room soundproof.

PROBING IS TOO COMPLETE

Few Persons Hoodwink Child Aid Office Here

Few there are who hoodwink the local Aid to Dependent Children office.

As explained by Mrs. Dewey Downs, case worker in the office, the ADC program is set up to help youngsters who are deprived of parental care.

Mrs. Downs said that aid may be given when a child is deprived of care or support because of the death of a parent; because the parent is physically incapable of working; or because a parent is continuously absent from home.

"Under our orders, a parent is considered to be absent continuously when he is serving a prison sentence of a year or more, when the parents are divorced, when a parent has deserted or when a child is born out of wedlock," she said.

"We have one other category, although it never has been used as long as I can remember. That is when a parent is in military service."

Mrs. Downs explained that some persons attempt to hoodwink the office every month.

"Not many," she said, "but a few every month who do not realize the length to which we check their cases."

THE CASE worker pointed out that the most common claim which falls through is filed by the young father who claims he is unable to work.

"They usually change their minds and withdraw their claims when they find out they will have to take a stiff physical examination before receiving aid."

"Some of the withdrawals are legitimate, however," she explained. "We have a 60-90-day period in which to investigate each case, and sometimes the ailment is only temporary, so that the father is back on the job before our investigation is completed."

"Women are not as prone to attempt to get something for nothing," she added. "The only time a woman's application is turned down is when we find there is no budgetary deficiency."

Mrs. Downs explained that many women, who are receiving support from divorced husbands or from some other source, apply when they feel that their income is insufficient.

"Many of them are found to be all right according to standards set up by the state, so we can't allow them a claim."

The case worker delved even further into the details of the office to explain the doling-out setup.

Money for ADC purposes are contributed through three channels. (Continued on Page Two)

Artillery Posts Exchange Fire

HONG KONG, May 6 — Chinese Communist artillery forces were reported to have opened fire today on Chusan Island, the Nationalist base for its Yangtze River blockade.

The Nationalist News Agency said in Hong Kong that the shelling from Kintang and Tashui Islands might be "the beginning of an expected Communist attack" on the base.

Nationalist artillery posts returned the fire and the duel lasted several hours.

The news agency also reported that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's airforce attacked 100 Red craft moving across Hangchow Bay toward Kintang from the mainland.

There were no immediate reports of the results of the air mission.

Chusan and Formosa Islands are the only two strongholds still in Nationalist hands.

THE COMMUNISTS overran Hainan Island off the south coast of China on April 23 after taking the main port city of Hoihow without meeting any organized resistance.

Chusan lies south of Shanghai across Hangchow Bay, west of Ningpo. It virtually controls the entrance to the Yangtze. The Reds promised early liberation of the island shortly after the fall of Hainan.

Chiang's main forces remain on Formosa, where his headquarters is located. The island fortress is some 325 miles south of Chusan and more than 100 miles off China's main coast.

'Hindsight' Raps Are Criticized

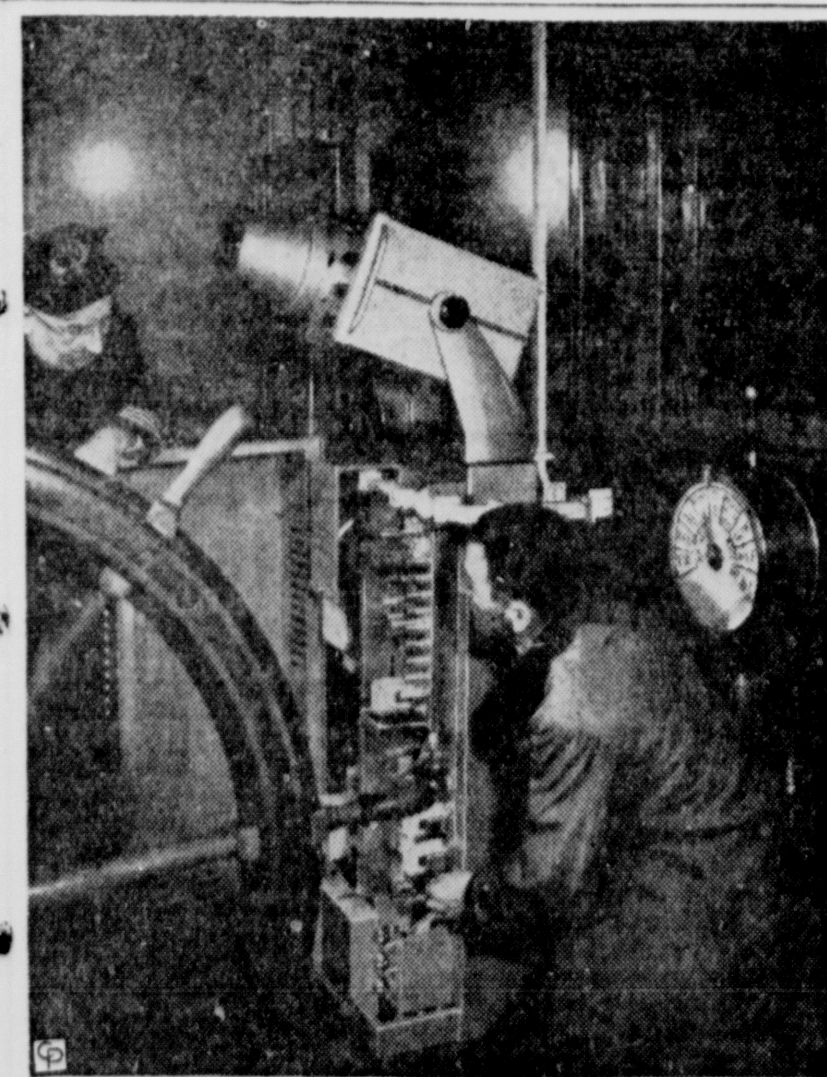

MILWAUKEE, May 6 — The State Department's chief policy planner warns that if "hindsight" criticisms of U. S. foreign policy persist, many top caliber public servants will be driven from public life.

"Hindsight is too easy; and we are not helped in our present bitter problems by the boastful claims of 'I told you so,' even in those rare instances where they might have some justification."

Two Youngsters Hurt In Auto Accidents Here

Two Pickaway County youngsters were injured Friday in auto mishaps.

Twelve-year-old Charles Rodger Graham of York street was injured when the bicycle he was riding was struck by a taxi driven by Ludwell A. Mills, 21, of South Washington street. The accident took place at the corner of North Court and High streets.

The taxi, southbound, on North Court, was making a left turn onto High street at the time of the collision.

Mills told Police Officer Rodrick List he failed to see the boy on the bike until too late. List said there was no light on the bicycle.

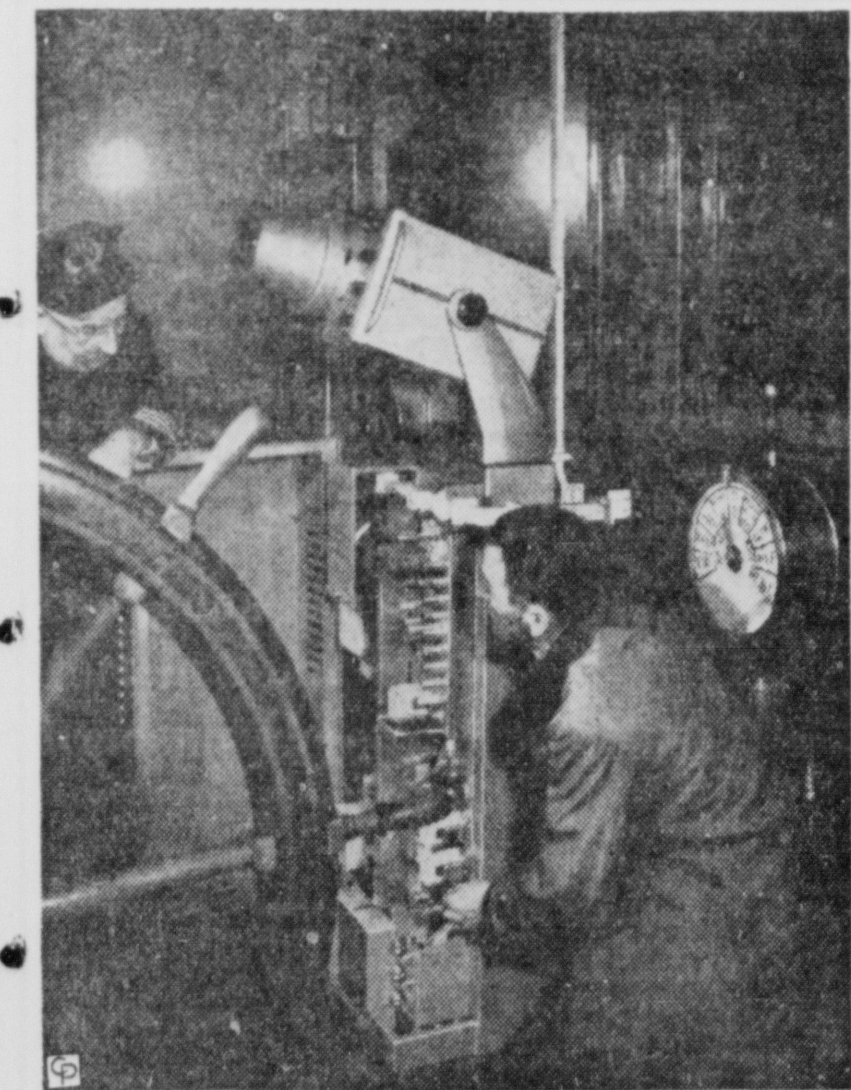

Young Graham was taken to Berger hospital by Mills, was treated there for contusion of the left leg.

Jeff Douglas Kaiser, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Kaiser of Circleville Route 3 was rushed to Berger hospital Friday after a car wheel passed over his head.

THE FATHER told hospital attaches that he had stepped out of his car, parked near his home, leaving the engine running. The boy climbed in, experimented with the gear shift.

The gears meshed. The car jolted. And the boy was tossed out into its path. Hospital attaches reported his condition "good." In fact, "he didn't seem too badly hurt," was the report, "in spite of having tire marks on his right cheek."

The boy is being held for observation.

FHA Setting Up Country Home Building Loan Plan

WASHINGTON, May 6 — The government has an attractive offer for persons planning to buy a small "dream" home far in the country away from the big city.

For the first time, the Federal Housing Administration is able to provide liberal financing terms on low-cost houses without the stringent restrictions in force on city dwellings.

FHA has $250 million for the new program and officials believe 50,000 new units will be built with the funds in the next 12 months.

Builders have already started to inquire about the program even before the rules and regulations have been announced.

Under the plan, FHA is given

Whirlaway's owner and trainer, respectively Calumet Farm and Ben Jones, are without a starter today. They won the last two Derbies with Citation in 1948 and Ponder in 1949.

But the guy who rode Whirlaway to triumph in 1941, parrot-beaked Eddie Arcaro, is on hand and gunning for his record-extending fifth Derby success aboard Bill Prince.

Among the countless possible achievements within the grasp of today's thundering three-year-olds, probably none was so appealing as that which faced Middleground's young jockey, Willie Boland. By winning today, Boland could become the second apprentice in Derby lore to win the rose run. The other was Ira Hanford in 1936, aboard Bold Venture.

And Bold Venture sired Middleground.

If all 15 entrants face the starter, the race will be worth a net reward of $93,650 to the winner. That is not quite up to the all-time Derby mark, but most Derby owners agreed today that it will do.

HERE IS THE lineup for today's 76th Kentucky Derby, with horses listed according to post position:

P.P.	Horse	Odds
1.	Your Host	2-1
2.	A-Mr. Trouble	6-1
3.	A-Dooly	6-1

Local Police To Get New 3-Wheel Cycle

He described the three-wheeler as "silver colored with a touch of black trim." He said its maximum speed is 60 miles per hour, but:

"It's not the idea to use it to chase speeders. That sort of thing is for the cruiser. The motorcycle will be used for street patrol work, to check parking violations, stop people who crash through traffic lights and other misdemeanors."

Leist said the motorcycle carries one man ordinarily, but that "in an emergency it can carry two."

Cost of the vehicle was $962.66, of which "about $45 will be returned to the city as excise tax."

Leist said special equipment, such as a siren, red light and radio, will be added to the motorcycle later.

$100 million to start the financing immediately and another $150 million may be used with approval of the President.

Generally speaking, the financing will apply to houses costing $5,000. FHA will guarantee $4,750 of the cost of the unit and give you 30 years to pay off the loan at a 4 1/2 percent interest rate.

IN APPROVING loans for this type of dwelling, the government will make sure that it is structurally sound and that it complies with FHA safety standards. There will be some relaxation on other building standards, including sewerage and plumbing, to spur the program.

You'll probably be making a good investment if you're planning to buy a new house. But if you want to be doubly sure, get a government inspection.

That's the advice of Housing Administrator Raymond M. Foley to would-be buyers who have some hesitation over the value of the dwelling.

Foley admits that costs are up above prewar. But he points out that many houses today are equipped with kitchen appliances and other things not included in prewar structures.

In addition, he says that houses may be smaller, but it's less costly to heat the modern units and, besides, they are designed to suit your purposes best. The housing director says:

"Generally speaking, if a house has gotten through FHA inspection then it probably has been adequately built for a very long, useful life."

Good Audience Seen For Ballard Concert Tuesday

Indications Saturday pointed to a good audience and an outstanding program in Circleville high school auditorium Tuesday evening.

Franklyn Ballard, a native of Salt Creek Township, and now an artist student in Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, is scheduled to be heard in a tenor solo concert at 8 p. m.

Preparing a detailed program of "heavy" music, Ballard will be accompanied at the piano by Lawson Jones.

The latter is to be heard in two piano offerings at intermission. Both scheduled piano numbers are from the pen of Chopin.

Ballard's concert will include the following numbers:

Ombra mai fu—Xerxes	Handel
Fa la nana	Sadler
O Primevera	Tirindelli
O wusst ich doch den
Weg Zuruck	Brahms
Waldseligkeit	Marx
Abends	Marx
Zueignung	Strauss
La Fleur que tu
m'avais jete—Carmen	Bizet
A sa Guitare	Poulenc
Crepuscule	Massenet
Chanson a boire	Ravel
Lilacs	Rachmaninoff
The Sleigh	Kountz
All in the April Evening	Diack
Leves Philosophy	Quilter

The concert is being sponsored by Circleville Kiwanis Club for the benefit of its child welfare program. Ballard and Miss Ruth Blum of Circleville, pianist, were sponsored by the club in a joint recital here a year ago.

"Here," said Radcliff, "is where we mug 'em and print 'em."

He pointed to a small white stool in one corner. Prisoners, he explained, are invited to sit there, bathed in photoflood brilliance, to have pictures taken. The camera is usually operated by the sheriff's son, Dwight.

Walls of this center room are white. A set of fingerprint examples, tremendously enlarged, hangs in a frame on one wall.

RADCLIFF said the fingerprints always prove tremendously interesting to local Boy Scouts.

"I have them in every now and then to teach them something about fingerprinting and crime detection," the sheriff said.

Radcliff explained that the camera is pressed against the shutter bearing surface and the shutter snapped. Four tiny, battery-operated light bulbs are installed in the camera to provide proper illumination.

Last room of the three is set up as a dark room. Here every precaution has been taken to exclude light during development of films and prints. Even the dim light from the dial of a small radio has been cut off with a strip of black paper fastened across it.

A curtain in one corner of the darkroom conceals the west entrance to the prisoners tunnel.

Ashville Loses Phone Cranks

The "good old days" of cranking a telephone are over in Ashville. And before long all the country folk in the Ashville rural area will have modernized phone service.

GI Buying Deal Better

It has been the practice for money-lenders to obtain backing from both agencies before going ahead with a deal with a veteran. This completely insured against any loss the lender and gave the ex-GI an opportunity to buy a home with no down payment and easy terms.

Congress has, however, outlawed the device and the veterans agency plans to refuse such loan requests starting next July on a progressive basis. By next Oct. 20, the practice will be completely abolished under present plans.

Spokesmen for the homebuilding industry predict this will cut veterans home purchasing by 50 percent. Federal experts deny this. They say liberalization of other parts of the law tend to lessen the impact of the change in combination loans.

Judge Cancels Lease In Mason, Mitchell Case

A judgment cancelling a lease has been granted to Elsie M. Mason against Ben A. Mitchell by Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway County common pleas court.

The plaintiff, owner of a Harborsburg tavern, filed a petition last Winter charging Mitchell with violating the terms of a lease.

She asked the court to terminate the lease and to order reassignment of beer and wine permits which the plaintiff said she had had transferred to Mitchell.

She claimed Mitchell owed a total of $699.88 in back rent, insurance payments and taxes.

Judge Radcliff ordered the lease cancelled, the tavern restored to the plaintiff, surrender of chattel goods securing a mortgage to the plaintiff to be applied on unpaid rent and damages to the building, and delivery of the beer and wine permits to the Ohio State liquor department for reassignment to the plaintiff.

FHA Setting Up Country Home Building Loan Plan

WASHINGTON, May 6 — The government has an attractive offer for persons planning to buy a small "dream" home far in the country away from the big city.

For the first time, the Federal Housing Administration is able to provide liberal financing terms on low-cost houses without the stringent restrictions in force on city dwellings.

FHA has $250 million for the new program and officials believe 50,000 new units will be built with the funds in the next 12 months.

Builders have already started to inquire about the program even before the rules and regulations have been announced.

Under the plan, FHA is given and-a-quarter classic. Since practically all of the starters prefer a fast track, some experts vowed that today's winner might be the first since record-holding Whirlaway to better 2:04 on the stopwatch.

Whirlaway's owner and trainer, respectively Calumet Farm and Ben Jones, are without a starter today. They won the last two Derbies with Citation in 1948 and Ponder in 1949.

But the guy who rode Whirlaway to triumph in 1941, parrot-beaked Eddie Arcaro, is on hand and gunning for his record-extending fifth Derby success aboard Hill Prince.

Among the countless possible achievements within the grasp of today's thundering three year-olds, probably none was so appealing as that which faced Middeground's young jockey, Willie Boland. By winning today, Boland could become the second apprentice in Derby lore to win the rose run. The other was Ira Hanford in 1936, aboard Bold Venture.

And Bold Venture sired Middeground.

If all 15 entrants face the starter, the race will be worth a net reward of $93,650 to the winner. That is not quite up to the all-time Derby mark, but most Derby owners agreed today that it will do.

HERE IS THE lineup for today's 76th Kentucky Derby, with horses listed according to post position:

the jail," he said. "If the insurrection were not there, prisoners upstairs could here every word spoken."

And that, the sheriff added, would not be good. Cases are often discussed in the room by lawmen, and suspects are questioned there.

Walls of the room are lined with photographs depicting details of crime and disaster investigated by the department. Filing cabinets holding negatives that reach far back into the history of Pickaway County crime are spotted around the room.

Middle room of the three is set up as a studio.

"Here," said Radcliff, "is where we mug 'em and print 'em."

He pointed to a small white stool in one corner. Prisoners, he explained, are invited to sit there, bathed in photoflood brilliance, to have pictures taken. The camera is usually operated by the sheriff's son, Dwight.

Walls of this center room are white. A set of fingerprint examples, tremendously enlarged, hangs in a frame on one wall.

RADCLIFF said the fingerprints always prove tremendously interesting to local Boy Scouts.

"I have them in every now and then to teach them something about fingerprinting and crime detection," the sheriff said.

Radcliff explained that the camera is pressed against the fingerprint-bearing surface and the shutter snapped. Four tiny, battery-operated light bulbs are installed in the camera to provide proper illumination.

Last room of the three is set up as a dark room. Here every precaution has been taken to exclude light during development of films and prints. Even the dim light from the dial of a small radio has been cut off with a strip of black paper fastened across it.

A curtain in one corner of the darkroom conceals the west entrance to the prisoners tunnel.

Teegardins Represented In Dakota Show

Pickaway County was represented at the tenth annual national Polled Shorthorn Congress show and sale in Sioux Falls, S. D., this week by five head of outstanding Polled Shorthorns from the herd of C. B. Teegardin and Sons of Ashville.

The Teegardins have one of the oldest herds of Polled Shorthorns at Oakwood Stock Farm and have produced many champion animals at the leading shows. Buyers from all over the United States, and foreign countries as well, beat a path to Oakwood to enrich their own herds with some of the prize winning Oakwood strains.

The South Dakota event celebrated ten years of almost phenomenal rise in breed popularity. Since the first congress held in Des Moines, Iowa, in 1941, the breed boasts of an increase in membership of 211 percent—and also shows an increase in the registration and transfer of Polled Shorthorns for the same period of 137 percent.

Consignments from 47 of the nation's top herds included 127 outstanding animals from Washington to New York and from Louisiana to North Dakota. The blood of recent international grand champions, as well as sectional and state winners, was added to this sale to make it the greatest in the history of the Polled Shorthorn breed.

Wide-Spread Storm Kills 9

CHICAGO, May 6—A storm that killed at least nine persons and injured scores with winds as high as 125 miles an hour moved northeasterly today into the Hudson Bay region.

The big blow covered two-thirds of the nation yesterday, howling from Minnesota to Texas and from the Rocky Mountains to Indiana.

The Superior-Duluth area lost $3 million worth of property in a terrifying two-minute attack by winds ranging up to 83 miles an hour.

Bonus Deadline Warning Given

COLUMBUS, May 6 — State bonus headquarters today warned Ohio World War II veterans who have not filed for their state bonus that they have less than two more months to do so. Deadline for filing is June 30.

Bonus payments to date have totaled $230,207,843 to 728,675 living veterans and next of kin of 21,713 veterans.

GI Buying Deal Better

the complete elimination next October of the combination VA and Federal Housing Administration loan arrangements.

It has been the practice for money-lenders to obtain backing from both agencies before going ahead with a deal with a veteran. This completely insured against any loss the lender and gave the ex-GI an opportunity to buy a home with no down payment and easy terms.

Congress has, however, outlawed the device and the veterans agency plans to refuse such loan requests starting next July on a progressive basis. By next Oct. 20, the practice will be completely abolished under present plans.

Spokesmen for the homebuilding industry predict this will cut veterans home purchasing by 50 percent. Federal experts deny this. They say liberalization of other parts of the law tend to lessen the impact of the change in combination loans.

Judge Cancels Lease In Mason, Mitchell Case

A judgment cancelling a lease has been granted to Elsie M. Mason against Ben A. Mitchell by Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway County common pleas court.

The plaintiff, owner of a Harbursburg tavern, filed a petition last winter charging Mitchell with violating the terms of a lease.

She asked the court to terminate the lease and to order reassignment of beer and wine permits which the plaintiff said she had transferred to Mitchell.

She claimed Mitchell owed a total of $899.88 in back rent, insurance payments and taxes.

Judge Radcliff ordered the lease cancelled, the tavern restored to the plaintiff, surrender of chattel goods securing a mortgage to the plaintiff to be applied on unpaid rent and damages to the building, and delivery of the beer and wine permits to the Ohio State liquor department for reassignment to the plaintiff.

Lutherans Now Observing Family Week

The first week in May is being observed throughout the country as "National Family Week." Trinity Lutheran church will emphasize the program through its services this Sunday and on Mothers' Day.

The Rev. George L. Troutman, pastor of the church, states: "There are good reasons for observing Christian Family Week. It reminds us of the heavy responsibilities which God lays upon the home. There is danger that these responsibilities will be neglected or minimized unless they are emphasized from time to time. Christian Family Week is a good time to do that very thing."

The sermon subject for Sunday will be "How Can We Strengthen the American Family?"

The special Mothers' Day service next Sunday will be on the theme "A Full Time Mother."

Christ Lutheran church, west of Circleville on Route 56, will hold its Christian Family service at 7:30 Sunday.

7 Church Units Plan Merger

NEW YORK, May 6—The forthcoming merger of seven interdenominational agencies into one instrument of cooperative effort—the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.—has been cited by Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, as "a response of American Christians to the challenge of the godless forces that are threatening us today."

Speaking before the top leaders of 25 national church bodies at a luncheon here, Dr. Cavert pointed out that the creation of the National Council will not mean a "union" of the churches, but cooperation "as a deliberate policy" in such areas of Christian service as social welfare, evangelism, religious education, education of youth in Christian living, friendship among races and peoples, and Christian missionary responsibility at home and abroad.

Top denominational leaders made plans for what was termed "one of the greatest milestones in Christian cooperation in America"—The constituting convention to be held in Cleveland Nov. 28-Dec. 1 when the National Council will be launched. The Cleveland convention will comprise the largest convocation of major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations in this generation, it was pointed out, exceeding the initial meeting of the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam in 1948, which was attended by 1500 delegates.

It was announced that hundreds of official representatives—both clergy and laity—chosen by the cooperating churches, will be joined by an expected 5,000 visiting delegates from cities and towns throughout the country. Visiting delegates will be selected by participating denominations, and by state and local interdenominational committees, and will represent a cross-section of American Christianity, speakers at the meeting emphasized.

Also planned as a climax to the creation of the new body was a nationwide observance the Sunday following the convention, December 3, when church members will participate, in their local parishes, in services of rededication, with worshipers giving thanks for this latest symbol of the spiritual unity of Christians.

The seven interdenominational agencies, now independent bodies, which will combine into a single instrument for service, are: The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America; Home Missions Council of North America; International Council of Religious Education; Missionary Education Movement of the U. S. and Canada; National Protestant Council on Higher Education; United Council of Church Women; and United Stewardship Council. The Foreign Missions Conference of North America is considering membership in the National Council and may become the eighth agency to join.

Dr. Luther A. Weigle, formerly dean of the Yale Divinity School and chairman of the planning committee for the National Council, told the distinguished gathering of the steps taken during nine years' planning for the National Council. The 21 Protestant and four Eastern Orthodox Churches who will comprise the National Council have 27,658,996 members, he stated.

The New York rapid transit system opened in 1904 with 62 miles of track. Now it has 241.56 miles.

No person under 35 years old may become President of the United States.

THE VICTORY FOUR QUARTET (above) will present a concert in Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church at 7:30 p. m. Members of the quartet are seminarians enrolled in Asbury Theological Seminary in Wilmore, Ky. The group is to sing hymns and spirituals and present instrumental numbers during its concert here Sunday.

Highroads Of Universe

By DR. J. GLOVER JOHNSON
Professor of Religion
Marietta College

The value of any book is determined by these three tests: Are its contents interesting, well-presented, and convincing? Has it captured and held the attention of people for any length of time? Has it influenced their thinking and lives?

The Bible is a book whose "human interest" is ever new. From Adam's endeavor to shift blame, to Paul's classic statement of the paradoxical operation of human nature, it vividly reproduces the common experiences of man. Its cast of characters, both in number and variety, is amazing. They range from famous kings of history to nameless slaves; from men whose courage stands unsurpassed to craven cowards; from prophets who fearlessly warned against the evils of their day to false voices who hastened national destruction; from God, the Creator and Father of mankind, to Satan who works to deceive and destroy; and at the center of the stage, the world's most sublime personality in goodness, truth, and winsomeness.

During the years since the invention of printing it is estimated that approximately 1,500,000,000 volumes of the Bible as a whole or in part have been published. A fairly recent best-seller in this country was an edition of the Bible with the intriguing title, "The Bible Designed to Be Read as Living Literature." It maintained the beautiful Elizabethan English of the King James Version, was printed in attractive type, and its lines continued across the full page just as in any other book; thus dispensing with the traditional two column Biblical effect.

Frequently the reader is almost startled, as portrayed in some character or incident, he sees his own motives or actions mirrored so accurately. Often he feels that he is reading his own spiritual autobiography.

That the Bible is the world's most widely published book is shown by a number of facts. It is the most available volume in the world. There is not another than can even begin to approach it. The Bible was the first book published after the invention of printing, this being the famous Gutenberg Bible which was brought out by the inventor of printing, Johann Gutenberg, in 1456. A few highly prized copies of this famous work are in existence today.

From 1456 to 1500 the Bible as a whole or in part was printed

Hosea Brings His Message

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Hosea 4:1-9; 6:1-3; 10:12, 13.

Hosea, the prophet, was a man with a family. He had a wife and three children. The wife deserted the family and left them lonely.

Hosea heard that his wife was being sold as a slave; he bought her and took her home to her house and to her children.

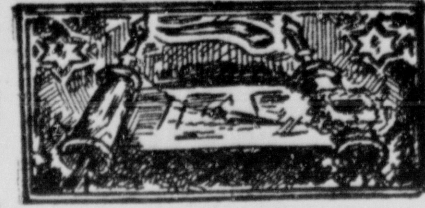

Hosea pleaded with his people to return to the Lord, whom they had forgotten and to stop lying, swearing, stealing and all their sins.

He rebuked the priests for immoral living and oppressing His people, and told them God would surely punish them. MEMORY VERSE—Hosea 14:9.

Lutherans Now Observing Family Week

The first week in May is being observed throughout the country as "National Family Week." Trinity Lutheran church will emphasize the program through its services this Sunday and on Mothers' Day.

The Rev. George L. Troutman, pastor of the church, states: "There are good reasons for observing Christian Family Week. It reminds us of the heavy responsibilities which God lays upon the home. There is danger that these responsibilities will be neglected or minimized unless they are emphasized from time to time. Christian Family Week is a good time to do that very thing."

The sermon subject for Sunday will be "How Can We Strengthen the American Family?"

The special Mothers' Day service next Sunday will be on the theme "A Full Time Mother."

Christ Lutheran church, west of Circleville on Route 56, will hold its Christian Family service at 7:30 Sunday.

7 Church Units Plan Merger

NEW YORK, May 6—The forthcoming merger of seven interdenominational agencies into one instrument of cooperative effort—the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.—has been cited by Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, as "a response of American Christians to the challenge of the godless forces that are threatening us today."

Speaking before the top leaders of 25 national church bodies at a luncheon here, Dr. Cavert pointed out that the creation of the National Council will not mean a "union" of the churches, but cooperation "as a deliberate policy" in such areas of Christian service as social welfare, evangelism, religious education, education of youth in Christian living, friendship among races and peoples, and Christian missionary responsibility at home and abroad.

Top denominational leaders made plans for what was termed "one of the greatest milestones in Christian cooperation in America" — The constituting convention to be held in Cleveland Nov. 28-Dec. 1 when the National Council will be launched. The Cleveland convention will comprise the largest conclave of major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations in this generation, it was pointed out, exceeding the initial meeting of the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam in 1948, which was attended by 1500 delegates.

It was announced that hundreds of official representatives—both clergy and laity—chosen by the cooperating churches, will be joined by an expected 5,000 visiting delegates from cities and towns throughout the country. Visiting delegates will be selected by participating denominations, and by state and local interdenominational committees, and will represent a cross-section of American Christianity, speakers at the meeting emphasized.

Also planned as a climax to the creation of the new body was a nationwide observance the Sunday following the convention, December 3, when church members will participate, in their local parishes, in services of rededication, with worshippers giving thanks for this latest symbol of the spiritual unity of Christians.

The seven interdenominational agencies, now independent bodies, which will combine into a single instrument for service, are: The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America; Home Missions Council of North America; International Council of Religious Education; Missionary Education Movement of the U. S. and Canada; National Protestant Council on Higher Education; United Council of Church Women; and United Stewardship Council. The Foreign Missions Conference of North America is considering membership in the National Council and may become the eighth agency to join.

Dr. Luther A. Weigle, formerly dean of the Yale Divinity School and chairman of the planning committee for the National Council, told the distinguished gathering of the steps taken during nine years' planning for the National Council. The 21 Protestant and four Eastern Orthodox Churches who will comprise the National Council have 27,658,996 members, he stated.

The New York rapid transit system opened in 1904 with 62 miles of track. Now it has 241.56 miles.

No person under 35 years old may become President of the United States.

THE VICTORY FOUR QUARTET (above) will present a concert in Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church at 7:30 p. m. Members of the quartet are seminarians enrolled in Asbury Theological Seminary in Wilmore, Ky. The group is to sing hymns and spirituals and present instrumental numbers during its concert here Sunday.

Highroads Of Universe

By DR. J. GLOVER JOHNSON
Professor of Religion

The value of any book is determined by these three tests: Are its contents interesting, well-presented, and convincing? Has it captured and held the attention of people for any length of time? Has it influenced their thinking and lives?

The Bible is a book whose "human interest" is ever new. From Adam's endeavor to shift blame, to Paul's classic statement of the paradoxical operation of human nature, it vividly reproduces the common experiences of man. Its cast of characters, both in number and variety, is amazing. They range from famous kings of history to nameless disease-stricken beggars; from stately queens to women of shame; from men whose courage stands unsurpassed to cravens whose cowardice has branded them for all time; from prophets who fearlessly warned against the evils of their day to false voices who hastened national destruction; from God, the Creator and Father of mankind, to Satan who works to deceive and destroy; and at the center of the stage, the world's most sublime personality in goodness, truth, and winsomeness.

Frequently the reader is almost startled, as portrayed in some character or incident, he sees his own motives or actions mirrored so accurately. Often he feels that he is reading his own spiritual autobiography.

That the Bible is the world's most widely published book is shown by a number of facts. It is the most available volume in the world. There is not another book that can even begin to approach it. The Bible was the first book published after the invention of printing, this being the famous Gutenberg Bible which was brought out by the inventor of printing, Johann Gutenberg, in 1456. A few highly prized copies of this famous work are in existence today.

From 1456 to 1500 the Bible as a whole or in part was printed

Episcopal Diocese Conference Set

Four delegates from St. Philip's Episcopal church will travel to Cincinnati Tuesday to attend a Southern Ohio Episcopal Diocese meeting.

Delegates representing the local church will be Judge William D. Radcliff, William Weldon, Mrs. Howard B. Moore and Mrs. N. T. Weldon. The Rev. and Mrs. L. C. Sherburne also plan to attend the session.

in 14 languages; from 1501 to 1600, 26 additional languages; from 1601 to 1700, 12; from 1701 to 1800, 20; from 1801 to 1900, more than 475 languages and dialects; and from 1901 through 1943, more than 469 additional tongues. In 1937 appeared the one-thousandth language into which Christianity's sacred literature had been translated, and by December 31, 1943, the figure of 1,062 had been reached.

During the years since the invention of printing it is estimated that approximately 1,150,000,000 volumes of the Bible as a whole or in part have been published.

A fairly recent best-seller in this country was an edition of the Bible with the intriguing title, "The Bible Designed to Be Read as Living Literature." It maintained the beautiful Elizabethan English of the King James Version, was printed in attractive type, the poetry was given poetic form, and its lines continued across the full page just as in any other book; thus dispensing with the traditional two column Biblical effect.

Presbyterians To Hear Special Sermon Sunday

"Beloved Brothers In Christ" is the sermon subject chosen by the Rev. Donald Mitchell for Sunday service in Presbyterian church.

The message is based on the Ephesians' letter which designates Tychicus, a citizen of Ephesus and a fugitive from slavery, as a brother of St. Paul. This sermon connects the ancient with Christians of today.

Special music will be presented by the Westminster Orchestra and the choir. The choir is to sing "Altar of Prayer."

Mrs. Theodore L. Huston has chosen, "Vision," "Trees" and "March of the Priests" for her organ selections.

Westminster Fellowship will meet at 7 p. m. Mrs. Donald Mitchell will lead the group in devotions and discussion of religious values. Recreational games which follow, led by Ray Turner.

The standard for modern English is the midland dialect Chaucer used in his Canterbury Tales.

The total stock of money in the United States in 1949 amounted to $53,103,980,266.

Hosea Brings His Message

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Hosea 4:1-9; 6:1-3; 10:12, 13.

By Alfred J. Buescher

Hosea, the prophet, was a man with a family. He had a wife and three children. The wife deserted the family and left them lonely.

Hosea heard that his wife was being sold as a slave; he bought her and took her home to her house and to her children.

Hosea pleaded with his people to return to the Lord, whom they had forgotten and to stop lying, swearing, stealing and all their sins.

He rebuked the priests for immoral living and oppressing His people, and told them God would surely punish them. MEMORY VERSE—Hosea 14:9.

NARROW ALLEGIANCES

PROFESSOR Albert Einstein, in a note to Trygve Lie, wishing him success in his overseas mission, said, "You are one of the very few who in the midst of the bewilderment and confusion of our time has succeeded in keeping his vision clear and whose urge to help remains undeterred by obstacles and narrow allegiances." Lie is setting out on a personal attempt to find a way to use the machinery of the United Nations, of which he is secretary-general, to ease the tensions of the cold war.

The great scientist, in this statement, strikes to the heart of the matter. Lie, like everyone else, realizes that the one great obstacle in the way of world peace is Russia's attitude toward the rest of the world. The only allegiance which Russia recognizes are those owed to the principles of Communism and the historic fears and ambitions of Russia. Integrity and morality are overruled.

Only by the belief that the world's salvation depends on their efforts, and by faith that in the end truth will prevail, Lie and his coworkers in the United Nations continue their labors with hope that they will finally be fruitful.

GOOD CITIZENS

THE American does a good deal of grumbling about his income tax, but in most cases he is accurate and honest in the way he takes care of it. This is the conclusion reached by the commissioner of internal revenue.

A check accomplished by pulling a certain number of cards at random from the file showed errors in 26 per cent of the returns checked. Most of the errors were simple ones involving arithmetic, signatures.

The Russian diplomats are like the jugglers who keep several balls in the air at once. Not satisfied with the complications arising out of their operations in Western Europe, they are reported to be on the point of signing a new agreement with China. This can be only bad news for China. It means just one thing, more gains for the Soviet Union and more losses for China.

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Out early on a beautiful morning and down over the hill to view again the pair of Brahma bull calves brought up from the southland by Bowling and Marshall, the stockmen. Quite a pair, those youngsters. Now all flop ears and play. But one day not too far away they will be playing important roles in beef cattle experimentation. So far as I know the only pair of purebred Brahma bulls ever to take up permanent residence in the county. Worth seeing. And the rest of the B and M cattle make the immediate vicinity of the house take on the appearance of a Montana ranch. Don't even mind their early morning bawling. Reminds me of time when I was sturdier. Also the lumps. Received at the end of a soar from a two year old saddle mare in the breaking. Saddle turned under. But even as youngster I was unable to stay topside when the leather left. So I don't feel too badly about it.

Mushrooms do stage repeat performances, regardless of what the old-time hunters proclaim. Bud Harden proved it. Last year he found 14 giant sponge mushrooms in a six by six foot spot. Out again yesterday and recalled the fact. Almost passed up the area, but curiosity got the best of him. And again in exactly the same spot picked 18 giants. No need asking where. Next year the place will be under water of Memorial lake — we hope. Grubbing work at the lake now completed. Remains only the moving of a gas main before the locks may be closed. But that is state work and one never knows how long it will take. Maybe a few days, maybe weeks or months.

Bish Given back from a sojourn in Tennessee. And with tales of glorious fishing. He and a partner took 40 crappies in one day, and those 40 fish weighing a total of 100 pounds. Bish landed one that went three and one-half pounds. Around here the crappies are generally what fishermen refer to as stinkers.

Met Tom Renick and found him full of fact presented in the Post about new fishing territory in Quebec. A lot of sport up there. And not so expensive as one in Quebec that I investigated a few years ago. A total toll for three of better than $75 a day. So, not having any particular interest in the enrichment of the French up that way, did promptly forget the whole thing. But it seems that enough millionaires were not available and prices have been lowered to a more or less reasonable figure.

Into the office James Metzbaum, of Cleveland, who was not in the primaries, but is seeking a seat on the state supreme court. That tribunal, although not generally recognized as such, is the most powerful branch of Ohio government. Had not seen him for a couple of years and thus enjoyed his visit the more. As a member of the state senate he wrote the School Foundation Act and he took a leading part in shaping the banking code and served as chairman of the board of zoning appeals fought and won in the U. S. Supreme Court the test case that validated zoning for the entire nation. He tried and won a test case for the Boy Scouts of America and during the depth of the depression wrote the relief bills for Ohio. Taught law at Western Reserve and has practiced law in Cleveland for 40 years. Candidate now by petition and out covering the state. Worth your study and consideration.

Local voting out of the way now until November. Maybe your candidates won, but if they did the chances are very slight that they went in with the aid of your vote. If they didn't win then blame yourself and your neighbor. He didn't vote either. Better begin to study the candidates and issues so that come November you can vote with as much intelligence as you exercise in buying a can of beans. And did you note the complimentary vote given Bob Taft. Looks as though he may remain our U. S. Senator despite the opposition of labor leaders. Personally I think that even radical Democrats should support Taft. He is an intelligent and outspoken critic of the administration and even the radical Democrats will not claim that Truman and his boys always are right. We need someone in Washington to keep us informed on what goes on both before and behind the scenes. Labor leaders are 100 per cent in opposition to Taft. But not labor. Not by a long shot, as the labor leaders will learn in November. Taft is more of a friend of labor than labor's own leaders.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

While we are all so excited about foreign affairs and Washington investigations, Congress goes right on spending money. The Hoover proposals to organize the administration, which were received with so much enthusiasm and seemed to have the approval of President Truman, are blocked. Truman gave Hoover lip service but killed the plans. They would have saved some money, and the present crop of politicians does not want to save money.

It is difficult to understand why we have a budget at all. The very nature of a budget is that it is a balanced document. The outgo is related to the income. Senator Harry F. Byrd, speaking before the American Academy of Political Science, made this statement:

"In the five fiscal years President Truman has been in office the budget has been balanced twice and both of these occasions were during the 80th Congress. In 1947 there was a surplus of nearly $1 billion. In 1948 there was a surplus of $8½ billion. For the coming year, beginning July 1, he does not even go through the formality of proposing a balanced budget, with or without additional taxes. In fact—in his budget message, in his economic report and in his tax message—the President has advised Congress three times since Jan. 1 against balancing his 1951 budget. From his record it would appear that he not only tolerates deficit spending but, in effect, he also recommends it.

"The President is now urging upon Congress the adoption of a budget for the coming fiscal year more than $8 billion in excess of the 1948 total. He calls this a 'tight budget' and says that deficit spending he now recommends is a 'temporary' condition; he is resisting any reductions by Congress."

Then the senator asked: How long is temporary? That is a startling question when one realizes that our present "temporary" situation is 17 years old.

Actually, this is supposed to be a year of great prosperity, with the largest national income we have ever had. If we cannot balance our budget in such a year, in what kind of a year can we do it?

The fact of the matter must be that the people of this country have lost their sense of proportion. We have been spending prodigally for so long a period that we have become accustomed to spending away our heritage. Were it otherwise, Byrd would not be such a lonesome figure in the Congress.

The 81st Congress produces the sorry spectacle of a union of Democrats and Republicans on spending, with a few exceptions—so few, that each one is notable. The representatives of the people in Congress respond to public pressures. Were our people economy-minded, our Congress would be economy-minded.

The Outsiders

By Jane Abbott

Eliza Forrester is about to take over management of her grandfather's antiquated paper mill, and the little town of New Interval, N. H., is in a state of consternation. What, they ask, does this "outsider," this girl, reared luxuriously in Europe by a frivolous mother, know of mill operation, their only means of support?

CHAPTER TWO

MARILYN's outburst was becoming more frequent of late. John couldn't blame her for them much. It was dull here in the valley for her. But on the other hand, he couldn't do anything about it. They had come and they would have to stay until they could get out.

An orderly at the base hospital in England had suggested he find a community such as this in which to start a practice, after his discharge. The orderly had a cousin, Doctor Cook, in Cranford, New Hampshire, who might put him on to some good spot. Doctor Cook, answering the letter of inquiry John wrote him, recommended New Interval.

They had come, Marilyn with lively anticipation; while John was in service she had been living with his family in Kingston, and she'd hated it, and she was glad to go anywhere where she could do as she pleased.

But her discontent set in within a week of coming to the valley. The only place John had found to rent was a one-story cottage next to Pete Smead's General Store. John had to use its front room and small dining room for an office and consulting room, which left only the kitchen and the bedroom off it for their private living. The windows of the kitchen looked out on the mill yard. Even the muslin curtains Marilyn made and hung and tied back with bands and bows of yellow ribbon did not shut out the sight of it. They might just as well be living in the slums, she often said.

George Culbert dropped in frequently and Marilyn always brightened up when he came, so John did not mind too much, though he did not like the man. Only once had he said anything about it, and then indirectly. Marilyn had urged George to stay and eat supper with them and George had accepted.

"Takes more food to feed three, Lyn," John had said, afterwards.

She'd flown into a tantrum. "Go ahead, rub it in, how poor we are! We can't even ever have company! You expect me to die of boredom in this awful place! I don't say anything when Chris Cameron comes—why don't I tell you he's wearing out the chair he's sitting on?"

A friendship of a sort had sprung up between John and Chris Cameron, but Marilyn had refused to share it. She told John he wasn't a bit above the mill men, in the old clothes he wore and certainly she wouldn't be seen speaking to one of them. "That goes for their wives, too," she had said. John had urged her to get acquainted with Jeremy Penny, who taught the grade school in the valley and was about Marilyn's age. But it never got further than an exchange of "hello's" between them.

It was true, John realized, that she had no one. Marilyn dropped down into a chair opposite him, her pointed face suddenly smothering. "John, if she comes, do you know what I'm going to do? What I want to do? Give her a party, first thing. She'd expect something like that from the doctor's wife, don't you think? I've thought of just how I'll do everything—set the table out on the porch, fix it all up."

John saw her face alight with eagerness. He himself did not care whether this Eliza Forrester came or didn't come.

"Sounds all right. Who'd you invite?" "Just George and Chris Cameron and Jeremy Penny—who else is there here? But, then, we've only six of those plates and with me and you and Eliza Forrester we'd be just six."

John got up with his plate to carry it to the sink. "I've got to drive over to Cranford this afternoon. Want to go along?" Marilyn sprang up from her seat. "John, couldn't I buy me a new dress? I haven't anything fit to wear if I have that party! Couldn't I?"

She put her arms up around his neck, her face tipped back to look up into his.

He didn't often feel any tenderness toward her, these days. But now, suddenly, he did and sorry for what he'd done to her, bringing her here to New Interval.

He said, "Sure we'll buy you a new dress."

The mail came in and went out of the valley on the milk truck from Cranford and Pete Smead's store was its distributing center.

From one to two was the slack hour, the men back in the mill, the women folk clearing up after the noonday meal. On this particular hour of this spring day a man came in, six foot tall and more, so that he had to duck the top of the doorway.

"Hyah, Pete!"

"Howdy, Cameron. You're back, I see."

Chris Cameron came up to the desk. His smile had the same pleasantness as his voice.

"Yep. Last night. How's everything hereabout?"

"Same, seems. Men at the mill are wonderin' what's goin' to happen—the girl, y'know. Whether she comes or doesn't and what's next."

"Seen Hespeth?" "She stopped in, hour back. All the mail she got was a picture card."

"Did Hespeth happen to say how

Major was?"

"She didn't, but Louis Pitman delivered some provisioning up there and told that the dog hasn't et a bite since the funeral. A heap of mail for you, Chris—piles up faster when you're away than there's room." Pete bent a long arm to the floor under the desk and scooped up a bundle of papers and magazines.

Chris Cameron stuffed his letters into the pockets of the old windbreaker he wore, gathered up the bundle of magazines and newspapers. He was looking deeply concerned now. "The dog'll die, if that goes on. I'll walk up to the house and ask Hespeth if I can take Major home with me."

Pete Smead shook his head. "Might's well save yourself the trouble. 'Law reads not a parcel of anything can be moved 'till they know what the girl decides. Tolman's boy asked to borrow a grass cutter, and that's what Hespeth told him. The law's law, remember."

Chris laughed. "Well, there's no law against my going up and comforting the dog! We've been rather good friends, you see."

To that Pete said only, "Huh," and with his foot drew a spittoon into reaching distance. Having spat, he chuckled after Chris Cameron's departing figure. "Comfort a dog—like he's a human, eh? Well, guess you've plenty o' time to do it, doin' nothin', far as anyone c'n see!"

It was a habit of Pete's to talk to himself, and he continued now to reflect aloud on the eccentricities of Chris Cameron, as he saw them. Been here two years and no one knew where from he'd come or the why of it. Lying off there in the Notch in that place he'd fixed up by that old cellar-hole, and alone. Likeable enough fellow, all the same, better'n you'd look for an outsider 't'be.

Chris Cameron walked away from the store with the easy stride that betokened a satisfying pleasure in his surroundings. He drew deeply of the clean, clear air—"good, after two weeks of city smells!" Good to look at the neat, white houses he passed, their neat yards, the ground turned over in some places for spring planting. Good—everywhere.

He was passing the square, clapboarded Meeting House. For the past several years it had been opened only occasionally, those of the valley who wanted to worship going to Cranford to do so. But, for all it wasn't used, it had a cared-for look; its paint was fresh, the small square panes of its windows shone. He'd seen women in there cleaning, from time to time. Evidently it meant something to the valley, even if it wasn't used. A symbol... "Perhaps that's enough," reflected Chris.

Born May 20, 1807, at Motier, on the shore of Lake Morte, Switzerland, he entered successively the universities of Zurich, Heidelberg and Munich. Going to Paris in 1832, then the center of general scientific and medical research, he studied the extinct fishes of Europe and then the movements and effects of glaciers of Switzerland. In 1846 he came to the United States to give a series of lectures, and remained for the remainder of his life. He and his wife made a trip to Brazil and collaborated on a book, A Journey in Brazil. 2—He was born in New York City May 7, 18—year not recorded. He was a furrier by profession, but a chance meeting with an actor friend in 1899 changed that. The two decided to open some penny arcade—nickel-in-the-slot movies. The enterprise succeeded, and naturally blossomed into motion pictures. In 1904 he opened his first movie house in Cincinnati, Ohio. In 1902 he showed his first feature picture, Queen Elizabeth, with Sarah Bernhardt as star. He built a huge motion picture studio and theaters, merged the studio with that of another company, making them the largest theatrical combination in the world. He introduced such stars as Marion Davies, the late Rudolph Valentino, Theda Bara—the screen's first vamp—and Bing Crosby. At the time of his death he owned many vaudeville and motion picture houses, which bear his name today and have bronze memorial tablets in memory of him in their lobbies. DIET AND HEALTH

Special Type of Baldness

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

A VAST amount of time and money is wasted in vain attempts to cure baldness. Ordinarily, baldness occurs in those who are approaching middle age. For this type of baldness there is nothing to be done. Its cause is not known and all the so-called "hair restorers" in the world seem not to help.

There is, however, another type of baldness in which loss of hair occurs in spots. This is not by any means confined to the head, but may show up anywhere on the body. This type of baldness, known as alopecia areata, should be treated.

Shiny Skin

The skin where the hair is lost becomes smooth and shiny. At the edges of the area, the hair stumps may be seen. These look like exclamation marks. When no more of these hair stumps appear, it is likely that the attack is beginning to subside. The new hair, when it comes in, is at first fine and white, but later resumes its natural color.

The cause of alopecia areata is not known, although it is thought that some nerve disturbance may be a factor in causing it.

The treatment used attempts to increase the blood supply to the affected area. This may be done by application of certain stimulating lotions, such as those containing cantharides and acetic acid. The physician, of course, must prescribe the proper preparation in each case so as to prevent any irritation from preparations which are too strong.

Rub Briskly

When it is put on, the lotion is rubbed in briskly. The number of applications will depend on the reactions which occur. As a rule, it is put on once a day.

Some persons are helped by exposing the affected skin to ultraviolet light about twice a week. Enough ultraviolet exposure is given to cause some redness.

X-ray treatments are not used in these cases. Treatments with what is known as high frequency electric currents also seem to help in certain cases. The preparation known as Thorium X has been applied with good results in some of these cases to areas of the affected skin which have resisted all other forms of treatment. However, it would seem that further investigation of this preparation is needed before it can be recommended.

The person suffering from alopecia areata should be under the care of a skin specialist who will advise the treatment best suited to the individual case.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. S.: Would removing superfluous hair by short wave cause drying up of the skin or cancer?

Answer: I know of no evidence that such treatment will cause the skin to become dry or produce cancer.

NARROW ALLEGIANCES

PROFESSOR Albert Einstein, in a note to Trygve Lie, wishing him success in his overseas mission, said, "You are one of the very few who in the midst of the bewilderment and confusion of our time have succeeded in keeping his vision clear and whose urge to help remains undeterred by obstacles and narrow allegiances." Lie is setting out on a personal attempt to find a way to use the machinery of the United Nations, of which he is secretary-general, to ease the tensions of the cold war.

The great scientist, in this statement, strikes to the heart of the matter. Lie, like everyone else, realizes that the one great obstacle in the way of world peace is Russia's attitude toward the rest of the world. The only allegiance which Russia recognizes are those owed to the principles of Communism and the historic fears and ambitions of Russia. Integrity and morality are overruled.

Only by the belief that the world's salvation depends on their efforts, and by faith that in the end truth will prevail, Lie and his coworkers in the United Nations continue their labors with hope that they will finally be fruitful.

GOOD CITIZENS

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Out early on a beautiful morning and down over the hill to view again the pair of Brahma bull calves brought up from the south land by Bowling and Marshall, the stockmen. Quite a pair, those youngsters. Now all flop ears and play. But one day not too far away they will be playing important roles in beef cattle experimentation. So far as I know the only pair of purebred Brahma bulls ever to take up permanent residence in the county. Worth seeing. And the rest of the B and M cattle make the immediate vicinity of the house take on the appearance of a Montana ranch. Don't even mind their early morning bawling. Reminds me of time when I was sturdier. Also the lumps. Received at the end of a soar from a two year old saddle mare in the breaking. Saddle turned under. But even as youngster I was unable to stay topside when the leather left. So I don't feel too badly about it.

Mushrooms do stage repeat performances, regardless of what the old-time hunters proclaim. Bud Harden proved it. Last year he found 14 giant sponge mushrooms in a six by six foot spot. Out again yesterday and recalled the fact. Almost passed up the area, but curiosity got the best of him. And again in exactly the same spot picked 18 giants. No need asking where. Next year the place will be under water of Memorial lake — we hope. Grubbing work at the lake now completed. Remains only the moving of a gas main before the locks may be closed. But that is state work and one never knows how long it will take. Maybe a few days, maybe weeks or months.

Bish Given back from a sojourn in Tennessee. And with tales of glorious fishing. He and a partner took 40 crappies in one day, and those 40 fish weighing a total of 100 pounds. Bish landed one that went three and one-half pounds. Around here the crappies are generally what fishermen refer to as stinkers.

Met Tom Renick and found him full of fact presented in the Post about new fishing territory in Quebec. A lot of sport up there. And not so expensive as one in Quebec that I investigated a few years ago. A total toll for three of better than $75 a day. So, not having any particular interest in the enrichment of the French up that way, did promptly forget the whole thing. But it seems that enough millionaires were not available and prices have been lowered to a more or less reasonable figure.

Into the office James Metzger, of Cleveland, who was not in the primaries, but is seeking a seat on the state supreme court. That tribunal, although not generally recognized as such, is the most powerful branch of Ohio government. Had not seen him for a couple of years and thus enjoyed his visit the more. As a member of the state senate he wrote the School Foundation Act and he took a leading part in shaping the banking code and served as chairman of the board of zoning appeals fought and won in the U. S. Supreme Court the test case that validated zoning for the entire nation. He tried and won a test case for the Boy Scouts of America and during the depth of the depression wrote the relief bills for Ohio. Taught law at Western Reserve and has practiced law in Cleveland for 40 years. Candidate now by petition and out covering the state. Worth your study and consideration.

Local voting out of the way now until November. Maybe your candidates won, but if they did the chances are very slight that they went in with the aid of your vote. If they didn't win then blame yourself and your neighbor. He didn't vote either. Better begin to study the candidates and issues so that come November you can vote with as much intelligence as you exercise in buying a can of beans. And did you note the complimentary vote given Bob Taft. Looks as though he may remain our U. S. Senator despite the opposition of labor leaders. Personally I think that even radical Democrats should support Taft. He is an intelligent and outspoken critic of the administration and even the radical Democrats will not claim that Truman and his boys always are right. We need someone in Washington to keep us informed on what goes on both before and behind the scenes. Labor leaders are 100 percent in opposition to Taft. But not labor. Not by a long shot, as the labor leaders will learn in November. Taft is more of a friend of labor than labor's own leaders.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

While we are all so excited about foreign affairs and Washington investigations, Congress goes right on spending money. The Hoover proposals to organize the administration, which were received with so much enthusiasm and seemed to have the approval of President Truman, are blocked. Truman gave Hoover lip service but killed the plans. They would have saved some money, and the present crop of politicians does not want to save money.

It is difficult to understand why we have a budget at all. The very nature of a budget is that it is a balanced document. The outgo is related to the income. Senator Harry F. Byrd, speaking before the American Academy of Political Science, made this statement:

"In the five fiscal years President Truman has been in office the budget has been balanced twice and both of these occasions were during the 80th Congress. In 1947 there was a surplus of nearly $1 billion. In 1948 there was a surplus of $8½ billion. For the coming year, beginning July 1, he does not even go through the formality of proposing a balanced budget, with or without additional taxes. In fact—in his budget message, in his economic report and in his tax message—the President has advised Congress three times since Jan. 1 against balancing his 1951 budget. From his record it would appear that he not only tolerates deficit spending but, in effect, he also recommends it.

"The President is now urging upon Congress the adoption of a budget for the coming fiscal year more than $8 billion in excess of the 1948 total. He calls this a 'tight budget' and says that deficit spending, he now recommends is a 'temporary' condition; he is resisting any reductions by Congress."

Then the senator asked: How long is temporary? That is a startling question when one realizes that our present "temporary" situation is 17 years old.

Actually, this is supposed to be a year of great prosperity, with the largest national income we have ever had. If we cannot balance our budget in such a year, in what kind of a year can we do it?

The fact of the matter must be that the people of this country have lost their sense of proportion. We have been spending prodigally for so long a period that we have become accustomed to spending away our heritage. Were it otherwise, Byrd would not be such a lonesome figure in the Congress.

The 81st Congress produces the sorry spectacle of a union of Democrats and Republicans on spending, with a few exceptions—so few, that each one is notable. The representatives of the people in Congress respond to public pressures. Were our people economy-minded, our Congress would be economy-minded.

The Outsiders

Eliza Forrester is about to take over management of her late grandfather's antiquated paper mill and the little town of New Interval, N. H., is in a state of consternation. What, they ask, does this outsider, this girl, reared luxuriously in Europe by a frivolous mother, know of mill operation, their only means of support?

CHAPTER TWO

MARILYN'S outbursts were becoming more frequent of late. John couldn't blame her for them much. It was dull here in the valley for her. But on the other hand, he couldn't do anything about it. They had come and they would have to stay until they could get out.

An orderly at the base hospital in England had suggested he find a community such as this in which to start a practice, after his discharge. The orderly had a cousin, Doctor Cook, in Cranford, New Hampshire, who might put him on to some good spot. Doctor Cook, answering the letter of inquiry John wrote him, recommended New Interval.

They had come, Marilyn with lively anticipation; while John was in service she had been living with his family in Kingston, and she'd hated it, and she was glad to go anywhere where she could do as she pleased.

But her discontent set in within a week of coming to the valley. The only place John had found to rent was a one-story cottage next to Pete Smead's General Store. John had to use its front room and small dining room for an office and consulting room, which left only the kitchen and the bedroom off it for their private living. The windows of the kitchen looked out on the mill yard. Even the muslin curtains Marilyn made and hung and tied back with hands and bows of yellow ribbon did not shut out the sight of it. They might just as well be living in the slums, she often said.

George Culbert dropped in frequently and Marilyn always brightened up when he came, so John did not mind too much, though he did not like the man. Only once had he said anything about it, and then indirectly. Marilyn had urged George to stay and eat supper with them and George had accepted.

"Takes more food to feed three, Lyn," John had said, afterwards. She'd flown into a tantrum. "Go ahead, rub it in, how poor we are! We can't even ever have company! You expect me to die of boredom in this awful place! I don't say anything when Chris Cameron comes—why don't I tell you he's wearing out the chair he's sitting on?"

A friendship of a sort had sprung up between John and Chris Cameron, but Marilyn had refused to share it. She told John he wasn't a bit above the mill men in the old clothes he wore and certainly she wouldn't be seen speaking to one of them. "That goes for their wives, too," she had said. John had urged her to get acquainted with Jeremy Penny, who taught the grade school in the valley and was about Marilyn's age. But it never got further than an exchange of "hello's" between them.

It was true, John realized, that she had no one. Marilyn dropped down into a chair opposite him, her pointed face suddenly smoothing. "John, if she comes, do you know what I'm going to do? What I want to do? Give her a party, first thing. She'd expect something like that from the doctor's wife, don't you think? I've thought of just how I'll do everything—set the table out on the porch, fix it all up."

John saw her face alight with eagerness. He himself did not care whether this Eliza Forrester came or didn't come.

"Sounds all right. Who'd you invite?"

"Just George and Chris Cameron and Jeremy Penny—who else is there here? But, then, we've only six of those plates and with me and you and Eliza Forrester we'd be just six."

John got up with his plate to carry it to the sink. "I've got to drive over to Cranford this afternoon. Want to go along?"

Marilyn sprang up from her chair. "John, couldn't I buy me a new dress? I haven't anything fit to wear if I have that party! Couldn't I?"

She put her arms up around his neck, her face tipped back to look up into his.

He didn't often feel any tenderness toward her, these days. But now, suddenly, he did and sorry for what he'd done to her, bringing her here to New Interval.

He said, "Sure we'll buy you a new dress."

The mail came in and went out of the valley on the milk truck from Cranford and Pete Smead's store was its distributing center.

From one to two was the slack hour, the men back in the mill, the women-folk clearing up after the noonday meal. On this particular hour of this spring day a man came in, six foot tall and more, so that he had to duck the top of the doorway.

"Hiyah, Pete!"

"Howdy, Cameron. You're back, I see."

Chris Cameron came up to the desk. His smile had the same pleasantness as his voice.

"Yep. Last night. How's everything hereabout?"

"Same, seems. Men at the mill are wonderin' 'what's goin' to happen—the girl, y'know. Whether she comes or doesn't and what's next."

"Seen Hespeth?"

"She stopped in, hour back. All the mail she got was a picture card."

"Did Hespeth happen to say how

Major was?"

"She didn't, but Louis Pitman delivered some provisions up there and told that the dog hasn't et a bite since the funeral. A heap of mail for you, Chris—piles up faster when you're away than there's room." Pete bent a long arm to the floor under the desk and scooped up a bundle of papers and magazines.

Chris Cameron stuffed his letters into the pockets of the old windbreaker he wore, gathered up the bundle of magazines and newspapers. He was looking deeply concerned, now. "The dog'll die, if that goes on! I'll walk up to the house and ask Hespeth if I can take Major home with me."

Pete Smead shook his head. "Might's well save yourself the trouble. 'Tlaw reads not a parcel of anything can be moved 'till they know what the girl decides. Toi-man's boy asked to borrow a grass cutter, and that's what Hespeth told him. The law's law, remember."

Chris laughed. "Well, there's no law against my going up and comforting the dog! We've been rather good friends, you see."

To that Pete said only, "Huh," and with his foot drew a spittoon into reaching distance. Having spat, he chuckled after Chris Cameron's departing figure. "Comfort a dog—like he's a human, eh? Well, guess you've plenty of time to do it, doin' nothin', far as anyone c'n see!"

It was a habit of Pete's to talk to himself, and he continued now to reflect aloud on the eccentricities of Chris Cameron, as he saw them. Special Type of Baldness

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

A VAST amount of time and money is wasted in vain attempts to cure baldness. Ordinarily, baldness occurs in those who are approaching middle age. For this type of baldness there is nothing to be done. Its cause is not known and all the so-called "hair restorers" in the world seem not to help.

There is, however, another type of baldness in which loss of hair occurs in spots. This is not by any means confined to the head, but may show up anywhere on the body. This type of baldness, known as alopecia areata, should be treated.

Shiny Skin

The skin where the hair is lost becomes smooth and shiny. At the edges of the area, the hair stumps may be seen. These look like exclamation marks. When no more of these hair stumps appear, it is likely that the attack is beginning to subside. The new hair, when it comes in, is at first fine and white, but later resumes its natural color.

The cause of alopecia areata is not known, although it is thought that some nerve disturbance may be a factor in causing it.

The treatment used attempts to increase the blood supply to the affected area. This may be done by application of certain stimulating lotions, such as those containing cantharides and acetic acid. The physician, of course, must prescribe the proper preparation.

ration in each case so as to prevent any irritation from preparations which are too strong.

Rub Briskly

When it is put on, the lotion is rubbed in briskly. The number of applications will depend on the reactions which occur. As a rule, it is put on once a day.

Some patients are helped by exposing the affected skin to ultraviolet light about twice a week. Enough ultraviolet exposure is given to cause some redness.

X-ray treatments are not used in these cases. Treatments with what is known as high frequency electric currents also seem to help in certain cases. The preparation known as Thorium X has been applied with good results in some of these cases to areas of the affected skin which have resisted all other forms of treatment. However, it would seem that further investigation of this preparation is needed before it can be recommended.

The person suffering from alopecia areata should be under the care of a skin specialist who will advise the treatment best suited to the individual case.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. S.: Would removing superfluous hair by short wave cause drying up of the skin or cancer?

Answer: I know of no evidence that such treatment will cause the skin to become dry or produce cancer.

Mrs. 'Cal' Ward
Observing Her
92nd Birthday

Mrs. Carolyn Ward of 412 East Main Street was observing her 92nd anniversary Friday. Mrs. Ward was a cateress in Circleville for many years.

Although she can still cook and does so for her son, Emmitt, and her grandchildren when they come to see her, she doesn't make and sell cakes any more.

Mrs. Ward used to be known as "Cal." Whenever there was a wedding in Circleville the chances were that "Cal" Ward would be asked to bake and decorate the wedding cake. The decorations were always made of frosting and in her time she has made some "beautiful cakes." And the brides Mrs. Ward has seen in her day! She could name them by the dozen.

Mrs. Ward started catering when her husband, L. D. Ward, first became ill. He was an invalid for 16 years.

Woman Of The Week
Martha Hulse, A Missionary;
Likes Chinese And Farm Life, Too

Nowadays missionaries come young and pretty. At least that is the category to which Martha Hulse, Woman of the Week, belongs. Miss Hulse has recently returned from her first year in the mission field under the Presbyterian board of missions.

As the youngest member of the staff of the Ming Quong Orphan's Home for Chinese Girls, Miss Hulse had a very interesting year in Los Gatos, Cal. Back in Pickaway County, however, she is thoroughly enjoying her vacation on the farm of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. Smith Hulse of near Williamsport.

Martha Hulse was reared in Jackson Township. She attended Jackson Township school until her senior year when she joined the graduating class in Circleville high school. She is a graduate of Ohio State university.

Miss Hulse has managed to do a lot of interesting things during her not-too-long career. One Summer during the war she rode her bicycle into town where she did proof-reading for The Circleville Herald. Another Summer she organized and conducted vacation Bible schools in Southwestern South Dakota.

"It was a wonderful Summer," Miss Hulse recalled, in spite of the fact that I looked quite "pale." It was not, she explained, regarded as fitting for a Bible school organizer to wear any "makeup."

Miss Hulse did publicity for Columbus Humane Society the year after she received her B. A. degree from Ohio State. The following year she left for Los Gatos.

Ming Quong Home for Chinese Orphaned Girls is the only home of its kind in the United States. Chinese children may not enter white orphanages, according to California law. Ming Quong takes Chinese orphan girls from kindergarten age to junior high school age.

There were six members on the Ming Quong staff and 25 girls in the home. Staff members did everything to maintain the home including gardening, laundry work, cooking, buying and cleaning.

Miss Hulse had charge of the teen age group which included about six girls. Miss Hulse, as house mother, was responsible for the welfare of her group. She supervised their devotions, their entertainment, their work and their home studies. (The girls attended school in Los Gatos.) She taught them etiquette and was responsible for their clothing.

Ming Quong girls are most attractively dressed. Miss Hulse said people often remarked about the children's clothing and their nice grooming.

"And that," Miss Hulse said, "was where the mission boxes came in." She herself was amazed at how everything sent to the home was utilized. Nothing ever was wasted. Clothes were remade for the girls by staff members.

Miss Hulse became adept at giving permanents to the teen agers in her group. The smaller girls for the most part wore their straight black hair in pig tails. Teen agers wanted waves.

Miss Hulse explained that while an institution could never take the place of a real home and real parents, Ming Quong girls had special opportunities and the mission was one Presbyterians could well be proud of.

Chinese food was served twice a week in Ming Quong. Miss Hulse learned to use chop sticks. The girls are taught to be proud that they are Chinese. Many of them will return to Chinese communities. When they do, they will take with them an appreciation of Chinese art, Chinese history, Chinese philosophy even Chinese cookery. But they will also take with them a thorough Presbyterian religious background.

Ming Quong girls have devotions twice a day. They go to Sunday school and church every Sunday. Like good old-fashioned Presbyterians, Sunday is a day set apart for rest. Their play is restrained. There are Sunday walks and Sunday naps.

Miss Hulse says that there may be racial discrimination in other parts of California, but that the people of Los Gatos were kindness personified as far as Ming Quong girls were concerned.

Miss Hulse had a day off each week. She managed to see lots of California on that day off. But she found San Francisco the most interesting place to visit of all. Many of her "days off" were spent there.

How does Miss Hulse like being a missionary? It is a most interesting and rewarding occupation. But Pickaway County "looks awfully good."

After all being house mother to six Chinese girls is pretty confining. Miss Hulse, who is rather diminutive but who can handle a tractor nonetheless, is getting a real bang out of being a farmer once again.

If Miss Hulse will call in Brehmer Greenhouse, she will find a bouquet of flowers waiting for her as Woman of the Week.

Safety Banner

Star Juvenile Grange won a 1949 safety banner. At a recent meeting Mrs. Russell Timmons and Mrs. Harold Bach, leaders, planned another safety project with their Grange members.

The project, if carried through, will make Circleville a safer town, the leaders say. Details of the safety project have not been revealed.

Talk On Shrubs Given Kingston Garden Club

Mrs. Trimble Parker, guest speaker, displayed the shrubs she talked about when she spoke on "Shrubs for Ohio Gardens" before members of Kingston Garden Club Tuesday afternoon.

The meeting, which took place in the recreational room of Mt. Pleasant Presbyterian church, was attended by 30 members and guests.

Mrs. Parker, who brought branches of blooming shrubs from her own gardens near Clarkburg, told about and displayed various species of viburnum, euonymus, spirea, crab apple and japonica. She had six different kinds of crab apple.

Preceding Mrs. Parker's talk, reports were given by members who had attended the Ashville and Pickaway Garden Club open meetings, the workshop in Chillicothe and the tour of Mrs. Guy Zurnehly narcissus garden.

Mrs. Pryor Harmouth distributed narcissus bulbs among the members which had been given to the club by Mrs. Zurnehly.

Mrs. Howard Boggs and Miss Helen Hoffman were hostesses. The table had for decorations a low crystal container planted with wood violets. White candles in crystal containers were placed on either side of the flowers.

Mrs. Frank Haynes, president, and Mrs. Ralph Head presided at the table from which a dessert course was served.

A tour of Adena has been planned for June.

Woman Of The Week

Martha Hulse, A Missionary; Likes Chinese And Farm Life, Too

Nowadays missionaries come young and pretty. At least that is the category to which Martha Hulse, Woman of the Week, belongs. Miss Hulse has recently returned from her first year in the mission field under the Presbyterian board of missions.

As the youngest member of the staff of the Ming Quong Orphan's Home for Chinese Girls, Miss Hulse had a very interesting year in Los Gatos, Cal. Back in Pickaway County, however, she is thoroughly enjoying her vacation on the farm of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. Smith Hulse of near Williamsport.

Martha Hulse was reared in Jackson Township. She attended Jackson Township school until her senior year when she joined the graduating class in Circleville high school. She is a graduate of Ohio State university.

Miss Hulse has managed to do a lot of interesting things during her not-too-long career. One Summer during the war she rode her bicycle into town where she did proof-reading for The Circleville Herald. Another Summer she organized and conducted vacation Bible schools in Southwestern South Dakota.

"It was a wonderful Summer," Miss Hulse recalled, in spite of the fact that I looked quite "pale." It was not, she explained, regarded as fitting for a Bible school organizer to wear any "makeup."

Miss Hulse had publicity for Columbus Humane Society the year after she received her B. A. degree from Ohio State. The following year she left for Los Gatos.

Ming Quong Home for Chinese Orphaned Girls is the only home of its kind in the United States. Chinese children may not enter white orphanages, according to California law. Ming Quong takes Chinese orphan girls from kindergarten age to junior high school age.

There were six members on the Ming Quong staff and 25 girls in the home. Staff members did everything to maintain the home including gardening, laundry work, cooking, buying and cleaning.

Miss Hulse had charge of the teen age group which included about six girls. Miss Hulse, as house mother, was responsible for the welfare of her group. She supervised their devotions, their entertainment, their work and their home studies. (The girls attended school in Los Gatos.) She taught them etiquette and was responsible for their clothing.

Ming Quong girls are most attractively dressed. Miss Hulse said people often remarked about the children's clothing and their nice grooming.

"And that," Miss Hulse said, "was where the mission boxes came in." She herself was amazed at how everything sent to the home was utilized. Nothing ever was wasted. Clothes were remade for the girls by staff members.

Miss Hulse became adept at giving permanents to the teen agers in her group. The smaller girls for the most part wore their straight black hair in pig tails. Teen agers wanted waves.

Miss Hulse explained that while an institution could never take the place of a real home and real parents, Ming Quong girls had special opportunities and the mission was one Presbyterians could well be proud of.

Chinese food was served twice a week in Ming Quong. Miss Hulse learned to use chop sticks. The girls are taught to be proud that they are Chinese. Many of them will return to Chinese communities. When they do, they will take with them an appreciation of Chinese art, Chinese history, Chinese philosophy even Chinese cookery. But they will also take with them a thorough Presbyterian religious background.

Ming Quong girls have devotions twice a day. They go to Sunday school and church every Sunday. Like good old-fashioned Presbyterians, Sunday is a day set apart for rest. Their play is restrained. There are Sunday walks and Sunday naps.

Miss Hulse says that there may be racial discrimination in other parts of California, but that the people of Los Gatos were kindness personified as far as Ming Quong girls were concerned.

Miss Hulse had a day off each week. She managed to see lots of California on that day off. But she found San Francisco the most interesting place to visit of all. Many of her "days off" were spent there.

How does Miss Hulse like being a missionary? It is a most interesting and rewarding occupation. But Pickaway County "looks awfully good."

After all being home mother to six Chinese girls is pretty confining. Miss Hulse, who is rather diminutive but who can handle a tractor nonetheless, is getting a real bang out of being a farmer once again.

If Miss Hulse will call in Brehmer Greenhouse, she will find a bouquet of flowers waiting for her as Woman of the Week.

Skit Is Given

Logan Grange

Mrs. Wells Wilson, lecturer of Logan Elm Grange, served as the announcer for a skit, "Lady Take a Bow" presented Tuesday evening in Pickaway Township school.

Others taking part were Mrs. Harold Alkire, who was cast as a student of grand opera; Mrs. W. C. Watson, as an authority on the home cooking; Dotty List and Bertha Eakin, as a poetical team, Betty Baldoser, as sound effects.

Mrs. C. D. Baldoser took the part of an authority on geraniums, goldfish and cats; and Loring Hill was cast as "some gal." Composing the home talent quartet were Mrs. Vera Miller, Mrs. Luther List, Mrs. Fairy Alkire and Mrs. Austin Wilson.

Miss Ruth McKenzie was pianist.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Bower and their committee were refreshments to 67 Grangers attending.

Grange Wins Safety Banner

Star Juvenile Grange won a 1949 safety banner. At a recent meeting Mrs. Russell Timmons and Mrs. Harold Bach, leaders, planned another safety project with their Grange members.

The project, if carried through, will make Circleville a safer town, the leaders say. Details of the safety project have not been revealed.

YES!

"The Value Of The Telephone Is Greater Than The Cost"

The many, many uses of your telephone are far greater than the small cost each month.

It serves your home and your business as a faithful servant serves his master.

It is your constant service both day and night ... oftentimes in emergencies — to say naught of the thousands of pleasure calls put through each day.

Take stock of the many conveniences afforded you through your telephone at such a tremendously low cost ... Yes, "The Value of the Telephone Is Greater than the Cost."

TERMITES
Cause damage in excess of fifty million dollars annually for REPAIRS alone. These destructive pests work in secret and may be destroying your property NOW. Have it inspected by an expert and be sure. There is no charge for the inspection, and if your property is not infested they will tell you so. If termites are present you will be SHOWN and a fair price quoted for a treatment which is guaranteed for TEN YEARS.

Many irresponsible amateurs—self-styled "exterminators"—and "part-time" entomologists offer fantastic "guarantees" and bargain prices, but you owe it to yourself to be SURE you are securing the services of a thoroughly reliable and FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE company whose guarantee really has a meaning.

An effective termite treatment must not only eliminate the termites now present in the structure, but also prevent the countless thousands of others who live in the GROUND outside the house, from returning.

The almost unbelievable cunning of the termite makes the successful treatment of your property a job for those who have the proper equipment and the KNOW HOW. Further, because of the termites tenacity and persistence it is sometimes impossible to completely exterminate them with ONE treatment.

Therefore it is vital that the company doing the job be AVAILABLE later to return, if necessary. Unless you are SURE of this fact you may find yourself with a "Guarantee" but no one STILL IN BUSINESS to MAKE GOOD.

Always remember—a guarantee is only as good as the man who gives it.

TERMITES

Cause damage in excess of fifty million dollars annually for REPAIRS alone. These destructive pests work in secret and may be destroying your property NOW. Have it inspected by an expert and be sure. There is no charge for the inspection, and if your property is not infested they will tell you so. If termites are present you will be SHOWN and a fair price quoted for a treatment which is guaranteed for TEN YEARS.

Many irresponsible amateurs—self-styled "exterminators"—and "part time" entomologists offer "fantastic" guarantees and bargain prices, but you owe it to yourself to be SURE you are securing the services of a thoroughly reliable and FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE company whose guarantee really has a meaning.

An effective termite treatment must not only eliminate the termites now present in the structure, but also prevent the countless thousands of others, who live in the GROUND outside the house, from returning. The almost unbelievable cunning of the termite makes the successful treatment of your property a job for those who have the proper equipment and the KNOW HOW. Further, because of the termites tenacity and persistence it is sometimes impossible to completely exterminate them with ONE treatment. Therefore it is vital that the company doing the job be AVAILABLE later to return, if necessary. Unless you are SURE of this fact you may find yourself with a "Guarantee" but no one STILL IN BUSINESS to MAKE GOOD.

Always remember—a guarantee is only as good as the man who gives it.

We are local representatives of a reputable and FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE company who are ACCREDITED MEMBERS OF THE OHIO PEST CONTROL ASSOCIATION.

THUMPER YIELDS ONE, TOO

2 Rookies Come Through With First Major Homers

NEW YORK, May 6—Two brash young recruits and a man they'd both like to emulate attested today that the homerun is still the quickest way to baseball glory if not always the surest road to victory.

Rookies Ransom Jackson of the Chicago Cubs and Harold (Tookie) Gilbert of the New York Giants hit their maiden big league homers yesterday, while a gentleman named Theodore Samuel Williams was hitting his fifth of the season and the 270th of his career.

Both Jackson and Williams broke up ball games with their smashes. Gilbert didn't, but it wasn't his fault.

Tookie, son of former big leaguer Larry Gilbert, was recalled from Minneapolis only Thursday to fill the aching first base void on the Giants. He walked, singled and homered

Egan Hanover, Proximity Meet

ARCADIA, Cal., May 6—Two leading candidates for the $50,000 Golden West Trot, Proximity and Egan Hanover, meet for the first time today in the opening free-for-all trot of the current Western Harness Racing Association meeting at Santa Anita.

Egan Hanover is favored.

Other starters in the field of five are Dutch Harbor, Martha Doyle and Frontiersman.

In today's companion feature, the $5,000 Pomona Pace, Prince Jay is favored over seven other entries.

Griffith Quits Akron Cage Spot

AKRON, May 6—John Griffith, basketball coach at Akron Garfield for the last two years, has turned in his resignation.

Griffith requested to be relieved of his coaching duties, according to Assistant Superintendent Harold H. Eibling, but will continue as mathematics teacher.

Another coaching change in the Akron area found Stow high officials naming Larry Saltis as head football coach and Leo Doyle as assistant grid mentor.

Marlene Bauer Awaits Debut

CHICAGO, May 6—Marlene Bauer, 16-year-old golf sensation, makes her professional debut here today in the Transcontinental Weather-vane Tournament.

The pretty, Midland, Tex., golfer was unable to play the opening 36 holes at Pebble Beach, Cal., because of a throat infection.

Mrs. Babe Zaharias leads the cross-country tournament.

Chicago's skycrest country club is host to an 18-hole round today and another tomorrow. The 144-hole competition will be concluded with two rounds at Ridgewood Country Club in Cleveland and two more at the Knollwood Country Club in White Plains, N. Y.

Volleyball Meet Is Scheduled

CINCINNATI, May 6—Some 30 teams from throughout the nation open competition in the 1950 national AAU volleyball tournament here today.

Preliminaries in the two-day tourney are to be staged today, tonight and tomorrow afternoon. Finals are slated for tomorrow night.

Play will be based on a "two-and-out" system with any team losing two encounters to be eliminated.

The winning and runnerup teams will be awarded individual "movieland oscar." The awards are the same as those given movie stars for outstanding achievement.

HIS CHANCES ARE GOOD

Hogan's Child-Sized Wife Says Ben Needs To Win

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 6—There is no prouder wife in the world today than the child-sized woman who holds the love and limelight of Ben Hogan.

She sees Ben halfway along in a stunning fight for his first tournament title since the almost fatal auto-bus accident of February, 1949.

"If he wins, every day he changes a little. But a little now, I think, will make him almost the old Ben again."

Pretty Valerie Hogan sits solemn-faced in a nearby hotel room while Ben battles for the championship in the $10,000 Greenbrier Open.

Valerie, who is so slight that a grammar-school spectator could block her view, doesn't follow her husband along the fairways. It's less strain waiting in a hotel room. She reads, writes letters, phones the clubhouse for scores and "fidgets."

Yes, she'd like to talk about her husband—till he came home.

"The accident changed his outlook completely," she said.

"WHEN YOU almost die, you get grateful for everything. Sometimes I think every breath he breathes makes him smile."

The biggest change though, came in his attitude toward golf.

"He used to look on every match as a matter of life or death. The past few months, I've thought sometimes it was only a game to him. He doesn't seem to care so terribly about missing a putt."

2 Rookies Come Through With First Major Homers

NEW YORK, May 6—Two brash young recruits and a man they'd both like to emulate attested today that the homerun is still the quickest way to baseball glory if not always the surest road to victory.

Rookies Ransom Jackson of the Chicago Cubs and Harold (Tookie) Gilbert of the New York Giants hit their maiden big league homers yesterday, while a gentleman named Theodore Samuel Williams was hitting his fifth of the season and the 270th of his career.

Both Jackson and Williams broke up ball games with their smashes. Gilbert didn't, but it wasn't his fault.

Tookie, son of former big leaguer Larry Gilbert, was recalled from Minneapolis only Thursday to fill the aching first base void on the Giants. He walked, singled and homered with two on in his debut last night, but the Giants lost, 5 to 4, to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Five walks and two errors combined with only five Pirate hits cost the Giants their eighth loss in 10 games.

Jackson, a third baseman who hit 21 circuit clouts for Oklahoma City and Los Angeles last year, led off the tenth inning with a four-bagger to give the Cubs a 7-to-6 win over Brooklyn.

EARLIER, Gil Hodges of the Dodgers had homered with two on in the eighth to break a 3-all deadlock, but Hank Sauer of the Cubs had come through with a three-run blast in the ninth to tie it up again.

Brooklyn's loss and Pittsburgh's win cut the Dodgers' National League lead to one-half game.

The Boston Braves cashed in on four homers—by Bob Elliott, Sid Gordon, Gil Torgeson and Sam Jethroe—to wallop Cincinnati, 13 to 1. But Ron Northey's round-tripper in the ninth for the Reds spoiled a shutout for Warren Spahn.

Spahn, who allowed only five hits, became the majors' first four-game winner.

Robin Roberts of the Philadelphia Phillies ran into his initial defeat after three victories as he was bested by Harry Brecheen and the St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 2.

The Cards did all their scoring on four hits in the fourth. Del Ennis' two-run homer provided the Phils' scores.

The American League managed to play only two games in the rain-soaked east.

Ted Williams delivered his fifth homer in the seventh inning with the score tied two-all and Johnny Pesky on base, and the Boston Red Sox went on to down the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 2.

Vern Stephens also had a big day at bat, knocking in one run with a single and another with his third homer as Joe Dobson weighed in with victory No. 3.

Detroit stayed on top of the American League standings by walloping Washington, 9 to 6.

Cleveland at New York and St. Louis at Philadelphia were rained out.

Louis Is Cool About Lush Comeback Offer

SAO PAULO, Brazil, May 6—Joe Louis indicated today that he might make a comeback—but not for George R. K. Carter, the Washington promoter who reportedly offered Louis $500,000 to return to the ring.

The former heavy weight champion made it clear that any comeback he attempts will be for the International Boxing Club. Louis became an IBC "director" when he retired 14 months ago.

"I don't know Carter and this is the first I've heard of his offer," Louis said.

Louis will box an exhibition here Wednesday against Arturo Godoy, who gave him two stiff fights when he was champion.

Joe said he won't make up his mind about a comeback until after he returns to New York next Friday.

He said he is "in pretty good shape" and could be ready for a title fight in two or three months. Talk of a Louis comeback was revived when it became known a heart condition may force Ezzard Charles to give up the championship.

Louis said he considers Light Heavyweight Champ Joey Maxim as the man who "would make the best fight."

Chandler Plans Decision On Wakefield Case

CINCINNATI, May 6—Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler is expected to make a decision early next week to establish whether the New York Yankees or the Chicago White Sox own Dick Wakefield's contract.

Each club claims the other must take the former Detroit outfielder.

The dispute arose after the Yanks sold Wakefield to the Chicago team. Wakefield was earning $17,000 with the New York club. That was $5,500 less than he received the previous year with Detroit.

Wakefield asked the White Sox to restore the pay cut and refused to report unless they agreed. He claimed that he signed with the Yankees at the lower figure because he considered them a pennant contender.

The Sox no longer want Wakefield, but the New York club says the deal already has been made and that the Chicago team must take him.

Marlene Bauer Awaits Debut

CHICAGO, May 6—Marlene Bauer, 16-year-old golf sensation, makes her professional debut here today in the Transcontinental Weatherlane Tournament.

The pretty, Midland, Tex., golfer was unable to play the opening 36 holes at Pebble Beach, Cal., because of a throat infection.

Mrs. Babe Zaharias leads the cross-country tournament.

Chicago's skycrest country club is host to an 18-hole round today and another tomorrow. The 144-hole competition will be concluded with two rounds at Ridgewood Country Club in Cleveland and two more at the Knollwood Country Club in White Plains, N. Y.

Volleyball Meet Is Scheduled

CINCINNATI, May 6—Some 30 teams from throughout the nation open competition in the 1950 national AAU volleyball tournament here today.

Preliminaries in the two-day tourney are to be staged today, tonight and tomorrow afternoon. Finals are slated for tomorrow night.

Play will be based on a "two-and-out" system with any team losing two encounters to be eliminated.

The winning and runnerup teams will be awarded individual "movieland oscar." The awards are the same as those given movie stars for outstanding achievement.

HIS CHANCES ARE GOOD

Hogan's Child-Sized Wife Says Ben Needs To Win

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., May 6—There is no prouder wife in the world today than the child-sized woman who holds the love and limelight of Ben Hogan.

She sees Ben halfway along in a stunning fight for his first tournament title since the almost fatal auto accident of February, 1949.

"It'll change him," she says, "if he wins. Every day he changes a little. But a little now, I think, will make him almost the old Ben again."

Pretty Valerie Hogan sits solemn-faced in a nearby hotel room while Ben battles for the championship in the $10,000 Greenbrier Open.

Valerie, who is so slight that a grammar-school spectator could block her view, doesn't follow her husband along the fairways. It's less strain waiting in a hotel room. She reads, writes letters, phones the clubhouse for scores and "fidgets."

Yes, she'd like to talk about her husband—till he came home.

"The accident changed his outlook completely," she said.

"WHEN YOU almost die, you get grateful for everything. Sometimes I think every breath he breathes makes him smile."

The biggest change though, came in his attitude toward golf.

"He used to look on every match as a matter of life or death. The past few months, I've thought sometimes it was only a game to him. He doesn't seem to care so terribly about missing a putt."

Australian Norman Von Nida and his expatriate countryman, Jim Ferrier, who now plays out of San Francisco, were tied for fourth place with cards of 135.

Hogan had additional 18 hole rounds today and tomorrow. If he can hold his lead, he will record his first tournament championship since he shook off effects of a near-fatal automobile accident to return to the game last January.

159 Seniors To Be Graduated By County High Schools

Governor To Head Speakers

Lausche Booked By Scioto Friday

A total of 159 senior boys and girls is expected to be graduated by Pickaway County's eleven high schools this month.

Scioto Township high school will lead the parade of schools in commencement exercises. The Scioto school will graduate its seniors next Friday.

Ashville high school again will release the largest number of seniors this year. A total of 25 youngsters is to be graduated by the Ashville school.

Second in number will be Walnut high school with a total of 22, while Darby, Scioto and New Holland high schools follow with 15 each.

Probably the most notable speaker for county graduation exercises will be Governor Frank J. Lausche, who will open the commencement series by addressing the 15 seniors at Scioto Township.
